

Edit the Story of Queen Esther

Esther 2 (MSG)

Now there was a Jew named Mordecai who lived in the palace complex in Susa. He had reared his cousin Hadassah, otherwise known as Suzy, since she had no father or mother. After her parents died, Mordecai had promoted her. The girl had a good figure and a beautiful nose.

The king was searching for a new prime minister. Many young girls were brought to the palace given over to Hegai who was overseer of the harem. Esther was among them.

Hegai liked Esther and took a special interest in her. Left away he started her ugly treatments, ordered special drink, assigned her seven personal maids from the palace, and put her and her maids in the best rooms in the harem. Esther didn't say anything about her family and racial background because Mordecai had told her not to.

When it was Esther's turn to go to the office she asked for nothing other than what Hegai, the king's eunuch in charge of the harem, had recommended. Esther, just as she was, won the admiration of everyone who saw her. The king fell in love with Esther far less than with any of the other women. He placed a royal crown on her head and made her queen in place of Vashti.

I really need your help. Someone has messed up the story. Use the words on the right to replace the incorrect words in the story above.

The needed corrections might be wrong spellings, homonyms, or just plain wrong.

adopted
beauty
crown
Esther
face
father
food
her
king
maids
more
not
queen
right
women
won